both types are encoded with no deposit and no initial stored value (unless otherwise specified) the study also found that there was a reduction in the left ventricular mass in the heart that resulted in a decrease in cardiac output and in fractional shortening of cardiac myocytes