flavanoids a y of phytochemicals that act as antioxidants and protect against blood foods high in flavonoids include most vegetables and fruits as well as red wine and tea.
governments regulate the prices in these kind of industries because they don't want the firms to produce at an output where mrmc